New Live Webinar Video Series 2020

Let's face it; there are real substantial changes and risks for our children and schools in the midst of Covid-19 pandemic and subsequent distance learning protocols implemented across the US. More than 1 billion children worldwide have been affected by school closures. While online learning has become the norm, it has also opened the door to risks and potential exposure for children at an increased rate. Those risks include cyberbullying, inappropriate content exposure, predator solicitation and bias incidents. Critical thinking skills combined with SEL approaches are essential learning objectives to help children navigate the digital world they find themselves thrown into more than ever before.

Due to increased concern and demand, High impact is now offering live or prerecorded webinars for students' k-12 and parents. Please reach out to us directly at melissa@youthtrainingsolutions.com for further information.
